

Have you seen Tablets affect Levels of Engagement & Learning in your Classroom?

#UKEdChat Session Hosted by Matt Smith

Thursday 24th October 2013

Mr and Mrs Teach @mrandmrsteach

Lots of students aren't keen on reading but stick a Kindle in front of them and things can change quickly #UKedchat

Steve Philp @frogphilp

Big edu report on iPads from Hull uni: www2.hull.ac.uk/ifi/ipadresearch... all engagement but not much on whether standards have been raised. #ukedchat

Jo Petch @violetjo3010

For non verbal pupils #speakall is great app to ask key questions to gauge whether they are reading with comprehension #ukedchat #SEN #ASD

Kerri Hastings @Kezmerrelda

#ukedchat iPad minis for eYfs teachers has made our online learning journeys a lot easier

Julian S Wood @Ideas_Factory

Tablets are an all-in-one. Don't need a separate camera, video recorder or computer anymore-not just for the kids! #ukedchat

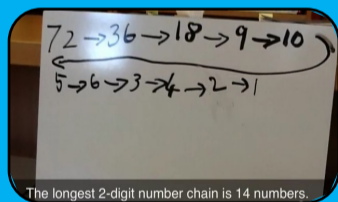

Steve Philp @frogphilp

favourite use of an iPad: using it to create an explanation video at the end of the week instead of 'finishing off time' #ukedchat

Steve Philp @frogphilp

@danielharvey9 @Kezmerrelda A video my 7 year olds made last week on ipads: youtube.com/watch?v=wKvos4... #ukedchat

Deborah White @WhiteDebs

#ukedchat have used maths board Fractions to great effect over the last 10 days - fantastic learning.

Martin Burrett @ICTmagic

Tablets offer children an infinite, ever-changing window through which to view, explore and dream. #ukedchat

Matt Smith @MattSmith566

Tablets are not the answer but they make the journey to engagement that little bit easier, especially with the reluctant! #ukedchat

Deborah White @WhiteDebs

@MattSmith566 #ukedchat : learning - learning - learning : not apps, apps, apps

See the full archive and summary at <http://ukedchat.com/2013/10/24/session-174/>

See More iPad EduApps at:

<http://ukedchat.com/eduapps/>

