

CLASSROOM MANAGEMENT

9 ideas from #UKEdChat - 2018

@THEEDNARRATIVE

Good classroom management is preparation, planning, and knowing your students so that you are designing their learning experience for them specifically. You have to teach the kids in front of you.

@EDDIEMCONLON

Students taking control of the learning, leading the learning, teaching and assessing each other - their class, their responsibility

@BRIGHTLINKLEARN

Great relationships first and foremost so that there is trust and mutual respect. Working with rather than to or for means shared ownership of what happens in the classroom and no need for disciplinary measures as this means early intervention

@SYSKAKJ_EDU

Classroom management is essential because without it, the interactions between students and teachers would not be anchored in education. The environment is so important because that is a devoted space to learn

@BRASSOTEACH

A classroom culture in which children appreciate their role is integral to the success of the whole team is essential. Unless a child recognises their actions not only have an impact on themselves but others they won't feel a need to address behaviour issues.

@SAVEDYOUASPOT

Creates a sense of safety where students know what is expected of them allowing them to become more receptive to learning.

@SUSANENGLISH

Apathy, apathy and apathy - deal with poor behaviour and rudeness and any other issue, but apathy is a tricky one.

@CONNORACTON

Own your space - sit next to kids, teach from different areas(no need to be always moving though!), greet at the door. Body language also hugely important - stand up straight and insist all kids looking at you when speaking etc.

@JAMIETA37990218

Respect (going both ways), understanding, empathy, engaging lessons that children see the point in, consistent and appropriate praise and consequences.
